A BETTER PLACE TO BE SOCIAL

Your children. Their friends. Their Spotlite.

Friendship first. Safety at the heart.

The local app for your children and their friends.

Children and young people want to be with their friends. Parents want to know their children are looked after. That is what we built Spotlite for.

01 / COMMUNITY ↗

The social life children want.

Share photos and videos, post stories and send messages. Bring friends from school, your club and everyday life.[1]

02 / ON YOUR TERMS ↗

Less noise. More friendship.

No ads in the feed. Posts from people you follow, in the order they are shared. You choose who to follow.[2]

03 / SAFETY ↗

Adults are looking out.

People and technology work together to moderate content around the clock. Safety is part of the service.[1]

4.9 / 5 User rating in the Norwegian App Store.[1]

Start with their friends.

An app alone does not create a community. People do. Start the conversation with other parents, the parent council or your club – and discover Spotlite together.

Here’s how to get started.

1 Explore the app together.

Find Spotlite in the App Store or Google Play. Explore the app and talk about what your child wants to share and who they want to connect with.

2 Complete registration.

Complete the age check and any required parental approval in the app. Access depends on age, local rules and the requirements shown along the way.[2]

3 Bring friends you know.

Start with their friends. Agree on healthy habits for screen time, sharing photos and speaking up when something is not right.

Safety is a shared responsibility.

Review the settings.
Check who your child shares with and the options for contact and visibility.[2]

Make it easy to speak up.
Use the in-app reporting tool for unwanted content or contact.[2]

No social app is risk-free. Moderation and age checks reduce risk, but do not replace good conversations with adults.[2]

For schools, parent councils and sports clubs

Bring up Spotlite at your next parents’ meeting. Share this introduction and contact us for more information. A digital community should be a considered choice for families.

See for yourself. Bring friends.

Monthly subscription: NOK 59.[1]
